FACTS COMMON TO ALL COUNTS OF THE COUNTERCLAIMS

11. The Counterclaimants repeat and reiterate the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 10 as if fully set forth at length herein.

12. On or about October 1, 1989, J. HANLY was hired by the SAUDI BANK at its New York Branch which then occupied offices located at 245 Park Avenue, New York, New York as its Treasurer and Vice President.

13. SHEIKH KAHLED was at all times pertinent to the allegations contained in the Counterclaims the Chief Executive Officer and majority owner of the SAUDI BANK.

14. Upon information and belief, SHEIKH KAHLED was targeted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a suspected financier of the terrorist ISAMA BIN LADEN.

15. J. HANLY was extremely active in the New York financial markets from 1969 until August of 1992 (the date of closure of the New York Branch of the SAUDI BANK). During that time period, the reputation and job levels of J. HANLY had increased with each new position.

16. While on holiday in Ireland in July of 1992, J. HANLY was directed by Camille A. Chebeir to return to the United States of America due to an emergency situation at the SAUDI BANK, New York Branch.

17. J. HANLY hurriedly returned to the United States of America on the next available flight, leaving his wife, E. HANLY, in Ireland to return on a separate flight.

18. The reason for the directive to return to the United States was that SHEIKH KAHLED was indicted by Manhattan District Attorney, Robert Morgenthau, on criminal charges of fraud, involving some THREE HUNDRED MILLION UNITED STATES DOLLARS ($300,000,000.00) of depositors money. (True copies of certain of the newspaper accounts of the then breaking story are attached hereto collectively as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.) These indictments were part of the scandal commonly known as the "BCCI Scandal".

19. The charges against the SAUDI BANK and SHEIKH KAHLED ultimately amounted to THIRTY BILLION UNITED STATES DOLLARS ($30,000,000,000).

20. SHEIKH KAHLED ultimately paid over EIGHT HUNDRED MILLION UNITED STATES DOLLARS ($800,000,000.00) in cash and forfeitures in exchange for having all charges dropped against him.

21. The SAUDI BANK and SHEIKH KAHLID have been prohibited from operating in the United States of America by the United States government.

22. The charter of the SAUDI BANK to operate within the State of New York was revoked in 1992 due to the criminal charges of an enormous fraud involving depositors funds and as part of an agreement between the District Attorney of New York and SHEIKH KAHLID and the SAUDI BANK. True copies of Supervisory Agreement, Order to Show Cause, Temporary Restraining order and Plan of Liquidation pertaining to the SAUDI BANK are attached hereto collectively as Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof.

23. The SAUDI BANK has not obtained another charter to operate within the state of New York. As of the date hereof, the SAUDI BANK is not licensed to do business in the State of New York and is not otherwise qualified and/or registered to do business in the State of York.

24. The SAUDI BANK has never obtained a charter to operate within the State of New Jersey. As of the date hereof, the SAUDI BANK is not licensed to do business in the State of New Jersey and is not otherwise qualified and/or registered to do business in the State of New Jersey.

25. Upon his return to the United States of America, J. HANLY discovered the charges lodged by the Manhattan District Attorney Morgenthau.

26. J. HANLY was directed by Camille A. Chebeir to effectively conduct, on behalf of the SAUDI BANK, an immediate fire-sale of all United States-based Treasury assets and liquidate all contracts with United States banks and foreign banks.

27. In the midst of this high-pressure, highly confused and very disturbing state of affairs, many, if not all of its over 100 employees of the New York Branch of the SAUDI BANK were threatened and intimidated into executing documents relating to their employment, including but not limited to the documents upon which plaintiff relies herein.

28. J. HANLY was advised that if he did not sign all documents presented to him, he would not receive any remaining funds owed to him and would not receive any severance payments and year-end bonus payments.

29. All senior staff of Arabic descent and/or practicing Muslims were placed in other jobs with the SAUDI BANK, or its affiliates or companies friendly to the SAUDI BANK. J. HANLY was not offered a job by the SAUDI BANK, its affiliates or companies friendly to the SAUDI BANK.

FIRST COUNT

(Breach of Contract)

30. The Counterclaimants repeat and reiterate the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 29 as if fully set forth at length herein.

THIRD COUNT

(Fraud)

38. J. HANLY and E. HANLY repeat and reiterate the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 - 37 of the Counterclaims as if fully set forth at length herein.

39. In reliance upon the employment agreement, as amended by the course of dealings of the parties, J. HANLY expended significant efforts and resources to develop and promote the SAUDI BANK services and did not pursue other professional opportunities.

40. The SAUDI BANK made knowingly false representations with the intent that J. HANLY rely thereon. Such representations include without limitation: (a) that a mortgage would be granted to J. HANLY and E. HANLY and that a certain written policy related to said mortgage would be applied in the event of J. HANLY's separation from the SAUDI BANK; (b) that employment would be assured at the SAUDI BANK or its affiliates; (c) that employment with the SAUDI BANK or its affiliates would continue so long as J. HANLY performed his job functions satisfactorily; (d) that employment would with the SAUDI BANK and any of its affiliates or branches would not be affected by nationality, race and/or religious affiliation.

42. In addition, the SAUDI BANK encouraged and J. HANLY in reliance thereon initiated and developed and applied new procedures in the Treasury Department of the SAUDI BANK. In addition, HANLY was requested and performed a review of the Treasury Department of the Jeddah Branch of the SAUDI BANK. HANLY's recommendations with respect to such branch were adopted and implemented.

43. The SAUDI BANK made false representations including but not limited to those set forth above to J. HANLY with the intention that J. HANLY rely thereon.

44. J. HANLY relied upon the knowingly false representations of the SAUDI BANK to his detriment and was damaged thereby.

WHEREFORE, Counterclaimant, J. HANLY, demands judgment against Counterclaim-Defendant, the SAUDI BANK for compensatory damages, punitive damages, interest, attorney's fees, a declaratory judgment discharging the promissory note and mortgage, costs of suit and such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

(Breach of Fiduciary Duties)

45. J. HANLY and E. HANLY repeat and reiterate the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 - 44 of the Counterclaims as if fully set forth at length herein.

46. The SAUDI BANK owed fiduciary duties to J. HANLY.

47. The SAUDI BANK breached said duties.

48. J. HANLY was damaged thereby.

WHEREFORE, Counterclaimant, J. HANLY, demands judgment against Counterclaim-Defendant, the SAUDI BANK for compensatory damages, punitive damages, interest, attorney's fees, a declaratory judgment discharging the promissory note and mortgage, costs of suit and such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

FIFTH COUNT

(Conversion)

49. J. HANLY and E. HANLY repeat and reiterate the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 - 48 of the Counterclaims as if fully set forth at length herein.

50. The SAUDI BANK has wrongfully acquired possession and control of property/services with the knowledge that same are the property of J. HANLY, to wit certain bonus monies in an amount in excess of TWO HUNDRED NINETY THOUSAND DOLLARS ($290,000.00).

51. The SAUDI BANK has converted said property.

52. The SAUDI BANK has benefitted from said conversion and J. HANLY damaged thereby.

WHEREFORE, Counterclaimant, J. HANLY, demands judgment against Counterclaim-Defendant, the SAUDI BANK for compensatory damages, punitive damages, interest, attorney's fees, a declaratory judgment discharging the promissory note and mortgage, costs of suit and such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

SIXTH COUNT

(Tortious Interference With Prospective Contractual Relations)

53. J. HANLY and E. HANLY repeat and reiterate the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 - 52 of the Counterclaims as if fully set forth at length herein.

54. J. HANLY reasonably expected to develop and profit from prospective contractual relationships.

51. The SAUDI BANK intentionally interfered with said relationships without privilege to do so.

52. J. HANLY has been damaged thereby.

WHEREFORE, Counterclaimant, J. HANLY, demands judgment against Counterclaim-Defendant, the SAUDI BANK for compensatory damages, punitive damages, interest, attorney's fees, a declaratory judgment discharging the promissory note and mortgage, costs of suit and such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

BCCI: The Mystery Lingers

Forget the old brain teaser about a tree falling in a forest not making any noise unless there's someone around to hear it. We know that the world's largest bank fraud can go almost unnoticed, except to Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau. We refer, in case you've forgotten, to the Bank of Credit & Commerce International, which was back in the news in two jurisdictions last week.

In Washington, Clark Clifford and Robert Altman agreed to give up $18.5 million in claims on stock and legal fees connected with First American Bankshares, the BCCI front they once headed in the nation's capital. In Luxembourg, BCCI auditors Price Waterhouse and Ernst & Young agreed to a payment of $125 million to the defunct bank's customers; the creditors will now recover more than half their money--more than quadruple the best estimates at the time BCCI went under.

These people, many of them Pakistani nationals in Britain, will be mighty glad that Mr. Morgenthau pursued the case when the Bank of England, the Justice Department and various others ducked. Yet for all the smoke Mr. Morgenthau uncovered we have only glimmers of the fire that led to it all. There are still unresolved questions about the political patronage that has helped shield BCCI principals from a full reckoning, and in particular about how a crooked Pakistani-Arab bank got control of the largest bank in Washington, D.C.

In this respect, the Altman-Clifford settlement is particularly striking. At issue has always been whether the two knew that BCCI was the real owner of First American, of which they were, respectively, president and chairman. Mr. Altman beat criminal charges of fraud and lying to banking regulators; Mr. Clifford was not charged because of his age and health. When the Federal Reserve Board settled civil fraud charges back in February, the two claimed that the central charges against them were "wholly untrue" and that the "remaining issues would have been resolved in their favor" had they gone to court. Maybe. But their checkbook said otherwise. In the Fed settlement, the two forked over $5 million in stock to compensate BCCI creditors. And last week they agreed to drop all claims to $18.5 million in stock and legal fees, in return for an end to remaining legal action against them.

Yet the essential mystery remains. Doubtless that's just the way many would like to leave it, because the names that pop up read like some kind of Who's Who. There is, to begin with, a large Arkansas connection, since Little Rock investment giant Stephens Inc. assembled the bloc of First American stock for the BCCI front men. Assisting in these transactions was the now-famous Rose Law Firm, then headed by Joseph Giroir, more lately a representative of the Riady family of Indonesia and participant in the notorious September 13, 1995, Oval Office meeting at which John Huang was dispatched to his fund-raising tasks.

Rose Attorney Hillary Rodham represented a Stephens subsidiary, the Systematics bank-data processing firm, in a related lawsuit. James Riady made his first appearance in Little Rock about the time these transactions took place, with his family ending up with a piece of the Stephens-dominated Worthen Bank. Another player was Bert Lance, Jimmy Carter's disgraced head of Office of Management and Budget, who apparently hoped to head First American himself. All of these people deny that they knew anything crooked was taking place, just a group of smart, well-connected Friends of Bill stunningly ignorant about the people they were doing business with.

Yet since the mystery has never been cleared up, you can't blame those of us who followed it from remembering names as they turn up in today's news. Nicholas Katzenbach, for instance, the former Attorney General surfaced last week with two of Mr. Clinton's serial White House counsels, defending the President against impeachment in a New York Times op-ed. We remember that Mr. Katzenbach replaced Mr. Clifford when the latter resigned from First American in 1991.

Ditto for John E. "Jack" Ryan, who ended up as head of the Resolution Trust Company and denied Rep. Jim Leach's request for documents relating to Madison Guaranty Trust, the Whitewater S&L. We remember that it was under Mr. Ryan's watch as head of bank supervision at the Fed that BCCI won approval to buy First American.

For those who worry that a BCCI investigation might be too partisan, we also remember that it was Senator Orrin Hatch who delivered a floor speech praising BCCI for agreeing to a settlement when Tampa prosecutors first found evidence of the bank's involvement in drug running. As head of the Judiciary Committee, of course, Mr. Hatch, would play a key role if an impeachment ever reached the Senate.

Finally, what do we make of the report that the National Commercial Bank of Saudi Arabia has close links with the owner of the suspect pharmaceutical plant bombed in the controversial raid on Sudan? We remember that the bank was run by Khalid bin Mahfouz, one of the BCCI front men in their purchase of First American.

Seven years after BCCI was shut down, the culpability (if any) of all these people remains unclear and unlikely ever to be resolved. What we do know, as Senator Kerry's 1992 report to the Foreign Relations Committee states, is that BCCI was not a good bank that went bad; from the beginning its criminality "was inherent in the bank's philosophy." And that a key component of BCCI's U.S. strategy was the "aggressive use of a series of prominent Americans" to lend "their names and their reputations to BCCI at critical moments." But of course none of these people understood the bank's nature; to believe that defense we must believe that the savviest, most well-connected players in Washington never understood what was going on before their eyes.

THE AMERICAN BANKER THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1992

Saudi Banker Indicted in N.Y. For BCCI Fraud

By JAMES R. KRAUS

The Manhattan district attorney announced Wednesday that a senior Saudi banker had been indicted as part of that office's ongoing criminal investigation of the Bank of Credit and Commerce International.

The district attorney, Robert M. Morgenthau, said Sheik Khalid Bin Mahfouz, the chief operating officer of the National Commercial Bank of Saudi Arabia, had been indicted along with an associate, Haroon Kahlon, on charges of scheming to defraud depositors of BCCI between 1985 and 1991.

Based in Jeddah, National Commercial Bank is Saudi Arabia's largest bank and is principally owned by the Mahfouz family.

Banker Issues Denial

In a statement, Mr. Mahfouz rejected the indictment as "completely unwarranted and without justification."

In July last year, BCCI was seized by regulators around the world. The bank has been charged by U.S. law enforcement agencies with engaging in fraud and money laundering.

It is also charged with secretly acquiring control of the Washington-based First American Bankshares.

The district attorney's office last year indicted BCCI's chairman Agha Hasan Abedi and chief executive Swaleh Naqvi for fraud and for falsifying records to hide money laundering.

Stock Fraud Charged

The latest indictment charges that Mr. Mahfouz, with the assistance of Mr. Kahlon, Mr. Abedi, and Mr. Naqvi, fraudulently sold his shares in BCCI in 1988 and in Credit and Commerce American Holdings, parent company of First American Bankshares, in 1989.

It is charged that as a result of this sale of shares, he received at least $300 million from BCCI that was subsequently booked as loans that were never intended to be repaid. □

SAUDI ARABIA

Khalid makes his comeback

Sheikh Khalid bin Mahfouz is back in the driver's seat at Saudi Arabia's National Commercial Bank (NCB), four years after stepping down amid allegations of involvement in one of the century's biggest banking scandals. His return has set tongues wagging in the Gulf, where it is widely assumed that the Saudi royal family prevailed upon local banking authorities to let him back in. But foreign regulators may nor be as forgiving; NCB was forced to close its branches in London and New York as a result of the scandal and the family paid more than $400 million to settle charges of wrongdoing.

More immediately, bankers wonder what effect Khalid's return may have on NCB's performance. When he was last in charge, the bank sustained huge loan losses that almost crippled it. Since 1992 it has been recovering steadily under the low-key stewardship of Khalid's younger brother, Mohammed. In the first half of this year, NCB reported net profits of about $120 million, 30% up on last year's results on an annualized basis. "It's almost impossible to say what may happen," says one analyst. NCB is the oldest bank in Saudi Arabia and its assets of over $20 billion make it one of the largest privately-owned banks in the world. It was founded by Salim bin Mahfouz, an illiterate Yemeni who moved to Jeddah during World War II and made his name as a successful money-changer there, under the patronage of the Kaaki family. Together, Mahfouz and the Kaakis won permission to establish the kingdom's first locally owned commercial bank in 1953. Since then NCB has dominated the Saudi banking system, mainly because of its government connections, nationwide branch network, close ties with leading merchants and reputation as the royal family's bank.

As the most able and ambitious of Salim's sons, Khalid assumed effective management control of NCB during the 1980s.

But he had first caught the attention of the western media a few years earlier, when he was identified as one of a group of wealthy Saudis who helped finance a disastrous attempt by the Hunt brothers of Texas to corner the silver market.

One analyst recalls that he was "a very dynamic, gungho trader" who enjoyed the rush of commodity trading. Even when he was the bank's chief operating officer, he "wanted to call the shots and make the decisions himself", another observer says, citing reports that Khalid would get tips on possible market movements and order the bank's chief dealer to take positions. When oil prices plummeted in the mid-1980s, however, NCB was suddenly confronted with huge amounts of bad loans, many of them reportedly to princes. After a massive recapitalization in 1992.

But it was Khalid's entanglement with Bank of Credit and

Commerce International (BCCI)

that proved most damaging to his reputation. Between 1986 and 1988, Khalid was implicated in the BCCI's massive money-laundering scheme.

He was forced to resign from

NCB in 1988, but returned to the bank in 1992, when he was named chairman of the board.

He now has to prove that he has learned from his mistakes.

Emerging Markets

◀ 1990, the Mahfouz family owned 20% of BCCI and Khalid served as a BCCI director. The family acquired most of its shares from a Saudi entrepreneur called Ghaith Pharaon (who had played a prominent role in an earlier attempt to corner the silver market) and it was bought out by the ruler of Abu Dhabi. The family also placed deposits with BCCI and received loans from it. Investigators later charged that these share transfers and loans were questionable transactions designed in part to hide BCCI's desperate financial condition and to defraud depositors. In addition, a US Senate committee report claimed that NCB had an "intimate" relationship with BCCI; for example, it alleged, BCCI concealed loans to major customers of more than $500 million by "parking" them with NCB.

BCCI was shut down in mid-1991 by regulators who had concluded that it was little more than a gigantic criminal enterprise. Along with numerous others, Khalid was indicted for fraud by a US grand jury and charged with breaches of banking regulations by the US Federal Reserve.

SUPERVISORY AGREEMENT

National Commercial Bank
New York Federal Branch
New York, New York

WHEREAS, The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) is charged with the responsibility of administering the International Banking Act of 1978 with respect to Federal branches of foreign banks and supervising federal branches licensed thereunder, and is authorized by 12 U.S.C. §§ 3102(b) and 3108(a) to issue appropriate supervisory rules, regulations and orders.

WHEREAS, National Commercial Bank, ("NCB") Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, is a "foreign bank" within the meaning of the International Banking Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 3101, et seq. (the "Act"), headquartered in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, and is certified by the Ministry of Finance of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia to conduct all types of banking operations within and without Saudi Arabia.

WHEREAS, NCB maintains a branch office located in New York, New York, ("the Branch") which is a "Federal branch" of NCB within the meaning of 12 U.S.C. § 3101 and is subject to the Act and other laws of the United States governing national banks.

WHEREAS, the OCC issued an Order to NCB on July 2, 1992 under the provisions of 12 U.S.C. § 3108(a) regarding the operations of its Federal branch in New York, New York.

WHEREAS, NCB has now committed to carry out a plan, which is hereby incorporated by reference and made a part hereof, which has been reviewed and approved by the OCC, to liquidate the operations of its Federal branch as provided for by the provisions of 12 U.S.C. § 3102(i) and governed by the provisions of 12 U.S.C. §§ 181 and 182.

NOW, therefore, in consideration of the above premises, it is hereby agreed, between NCB, by and through its authorized officials acting through its Federal Branch, and the Comptroller, that:

- (1) NCB shall immediately undertake to implement the above-referenced plan of liquidation, as approved.
- (2) Any changes to the plan may only be made with the approval of the Comptroller.
- (3) The Order of July 2, 1992 is terminated and that this Agreement is hereby entered in lieu thereof.

The provisions of this Agreement are immediately effective upon issuance, and shall remain effective and enforceable except to the extent that, and until such time as, any provisions of this Agreement shall have been amended by the mutual consent of the parties, or suspended, waived, or terminated by the OCC.

This Agreement shall have the same force and effect as an Order entered into within the meaning of 12 U.S.C. § 3108(a). The OCC will monitor compliance with the terms of this Agreement and if, at any time, the Comptroller of the Currency deems it appropriate in fulfilling the responsibilities placed upon him by the several laws of the United States to take any action affecting this Branch, nothing in this Agreement shall in any way inhibit, estop, bar or otherwise prevent him from doing so. Failure to comply with the provisions of this Agreement may be considered by the OCC to constitute a violation within the meaning of 12 U.S.C. § 3102(i).

Plan of Liquidation

NCB will voluntarily liquidate the operations of its Federal branch located in New York (the "Branch") in accordance with the plan that follows. The effective date of the plan will be July 9, 1992.

The Branch has the following types of domestic and foreign liabilities to third parties: (i) demand deposits (including cashiers checks), (ii) time deposits and certificates of deposits, (iii) call/notice deposits, (iv) short-term borrowings (including securities sold pursuant to agreement to repurchase), (v) liabilities in respect of letters of credit, banker's acceptances, foreign exchange contracts, swap agreements, loan commitments and risk participations in letters of credit, and (vi) accounts payable.

The following are deadlines for the specified actions; NCB will endeavor to complete the actions prior to the deadlines:

As of the Effective Date of this Plan

- (i) The General Manager of the Branch will be appointed liquidating agent of the Branch pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 181.
- (ii) The liquidating agent will submit to the OCC an interim report of the assets and liabilities of the Branch as of the close of business on the date before the effective date of the plan. The liquidating agent will attest to the validity of the report.

(iii) The Branch will not:

- (a) accept new deposits, provided that the Branch may accept new deposits into a demand deposit account and call/notice deposit account of an existing customer until the later of the date such customer transfers the account elsewhere or the deadline for such transfers arrives
- (b) make new loans or loan commitments
- (c) enter into new foreign exchange or swap transactions
- (d) enter into new bankers' acceptances
- (e) issue or confirm new letters of credit or purchase risk participations in new letters of credit
- (f) enter into any other new business not specifically authorized by this plan or by the OCC

(iv) The Branch will commence liquidating its assets in an orderly manner.

(v) The Branch will publish a notice of closure in a newspaper of general circulation in New York for the first time; publication will continue daily for 45 days.

Fifteen Days From the Effective Date of this Plan

(i) The Branch will inform its U.S.-based demand and call/notice deposit customers that they

- (ii) The Branch will pay when due all third party liabilities that have come due through this date.

Forty-five Days From the Effective Date of this Plan

- (i) The Branch will either liquidate or (with the consent of the counterparty) transfer to a non-U.S. office all remaining foreign exchange and swap transactions.
- (ii) The Branch will (with the consent of the counterparty) transfer to a non-U.S. office all loan commitments and risk participations in letters of credit.
- (iii) The Branch will either pay off or (with the consent of the depositors) transfer to a non-U.S. office all remaining demand, call/notice, time deposits and certificates of deposits.*
- (iv) The Branch will pay all remaining accounts payable (unless the party involved consents to the transfer of the Branch's obligation to a non-U.S. office).
- (v) The Branch will settle or (with the consent of the beneficiary) transfer to a non-U.S. office or to an unaffiliated U.S. bank all letters of credit and bankers' acceptances.

* The Branch has a deposit from Iraq that is subject to blockage under U.S. foreign asset control regulations. The Branch will seek to transfer the deposit to a U.S. bank in a manner acceptable to the OCC and the Office of Foreign Assets Control.

Sixty Days From the Effective Date of this Plan

- (i) The Branch will cease its New York operations and will cease conducting any business other than that necessary for purposes of terminating the Branch's administration of NCB's Cayman Islands branch.
- (ii) The liquidating agent will inform the OCC how the Branch will handle the lease.

Ninety Days From the Effective Date of this Plan

- (i) The Branch will withdraw from the New York Clearing House CHIPS system and will close its accounts with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.
- (ii) The liquidating agent will submit a final notice of closure of the Branch to the OCC. The notice will include a certification by a certified public accounting firm concerning the claims that have been filed during the voluntary liquidation.
- (iii) The Branch will return to the OCC all Reports of Examination and the Branch license certificate.
- (iv) The Branch will deposit an amount necessary to satisfy any valid unresolved third party direct claims against the Branch (i.e., obligations that would represent a valid enforceable legal obligation against the Branch if the Branch were a separate legal entity) in escrow with a U.S. bank.

(v) The Branch's administration of NCB's Cayman Island branch will end.

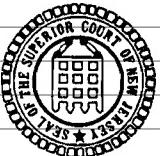

(vi) The physical operations of NCB's Cayman Islands branch will be moved to a location outside the United States.

During the process of liquidation, the Branch will make transfers to its non-U.S. offices only if (i) the ratio of (a) third party assets to (b) liabilities to third parties will not fall below 1.63 to 1 and (ii) the net amount due to non-U.S. offices will not fall below $5 million. For these purposes, the Branch's capital equivalency deposit will not be deemed a third party asset. The assets maintained by the Branch would be of high quality. Payment of deposits and other obligations to NCB's head office, other affiliates and controlling shareholders will be made only with 24 hours prior notice to the OCC or with the OCC's prior approval, which shall not be unreasonably withheld. In the absence of objection from the OCC during such 24 hour period, the payment may be made.

In the event that any deadline under this plan falls on a date that is not a business day in New York City, the deadline shall fall on the next succeeding business day in New York City.

Nothing contained herein shall relieve NCB from its obligation to comply with the requirements of the International Banking Act of 1978, including the requirement to obtain any required approvals under that Act.
